THE SEARCH IS OVER: TOWERHUNTER TAPS TOP HEALTHCARE EXECUTIVES

(Phoenix, AZ – October 20, 2003) – In a struggling economy that has resulted in numerous top-level executives finding themselves out of work, the biomedical and healthcare industries are experiencing growth. However, few of those looking for work qualify for this very specialized field, and many companies in these respective industries are facing difficulties finding top executives qualified to manage their operations.

TowerHunter, a Phoenix-based national executive search firm is filling the void by attracting leading executives from across the country for their ever-expanding roster of clients which include integrated delivery systems, community hospitals, managed care organizations, bio-medical and other healthcare related organizations located throughout the United States.

“We have successfully filled positions from Director to the Executive level across both clinical and non-clinical positions,” explains Terry Hindmarch, managing partner of TowerHunter and a veteran in the executive search and healthcare arena. “As a firm that relies on repeat clients, we have the advantage of being able to target a larger number of industry competitors and other well respected organizations to find great leaders for our clients.”

Our unparalleled resources which include an experienced and professional research recruiting team along with an active database of healthcare executives helps ensure TowerHunter’s speed of services with a 95% placement rate.
